Who we are

CASEY HOUSE YESTERDAY, TODAY & TOMORROW

Casey House is a specialty HIV/AIDS hospital with community programs including home nursing care and outreach. Founded in 1988, we were the first freestanding HIV/AIDS facility in Canada and the first freestanding hospice in Ontario. At that time, there were no effective treatments for HIV/AIDS and so Casey House pioneered the hospice care movement in Canada, leading the way in providing compassionate end-of-life care.

Since that time, wonderful advances in HIV treatment have evolved and a diagnosis of HIV is no longer a terminal disease, if a person is able to access effective treatment. However, many people in our community face barriers to care, or have developed complications that result in a very complex burden of illness.

In keeping with our founding values, it is these people that Casey House serves today: The most sick, the most marginalized, the most alone.

Continuing to pioneer HIV care in our community, in late 2016 Casey House is scheduled to open a greatly expanded facility that will feature a new model of care, including a new Day Health Program.

These exciting advancements will launch a brand new approach to compassionate, inspired health care for people living with complex experiences of HIV/AIDS.

What's at the heart of change

Adapting to change is at the root of Casey House's pioneering health care leadership. When Casey House opened in 1988, we were the first freestanding AIDS hospice in Ontario. Health care providers from across Canada and beyond visited Casey House not just to learn how we cared for people who were dying of AIDS, but simply to learn about our innovative, holistic and compassionate approach to end of life care.

Today our original mission of hospice care has transformed from end of life care into helping people live with the medical complexities of HIV and aging, which can include additional burdens such as cancer, heart disease, mental illness, cognitive impairment and substance use. Just as our clients must continuously adapt in order to cope effectively with their illness, Casey House must also adapt our model of care. In the decades to come, people living with HIV/AIDS will require more care and services. This has significant implications for the types of services Casey House offers and our work with other organizations to help meet the care needs of people living with HIV/AIDS.

Our skilled and dedicated staff team are continuously learning and adapting. This year, we introduced an expanded inpatient admission package and began a partnership with Toronto Public Health for our staff to receive training on how to better support clients who use substances. Our fundraising team, as a result of an extensive strategic planning process, is working to ensure more sustainable revenue streams by shifting the current reliance on event revenue to support from leadership and individual gifts.

While Casey House continues our inpatient, home care, and outreach programs, we are excited to have taken a bold step forward in Casey House's evolution with the start of construction of our new home. Our new building will enable us to respond to the changing and escalating need for advanced HIV/AIDS care by providing space for an innovative model of HIV/AIDS care that includes a Day Health Program. Our staff teams have already begun the detailed preparatory work necessary to ensure that we will be ready when the new building is scheduled to open in late 2016.

As we begin this new chapter in Casey House's history, we are grateful to our donors and community of support for having the vision to support us. Each and every day, the expertise and compassion of our entire staff and volunteer team allows Casey House to provide the type of care our clients need and deserve. Together, we are on the path to great things.

Gillian Stacey
Chair, Casey House Board of Directors

Stephanie Karapita
Chief Executive Officer, Casey House

Breaking new ground in HIV/AIDS health care!

On March 30, 2015 hundreds from the Casey House community came together for a very special groundbreaking ceremony to mark the start of construction on our new 58,000-square-foot home for compassionate HIV/AIDS health care at the corner of Jarvis and Isabella Streets.

“Casey House has a well-deserved reputation for 27 years of compassionate and innovative health care for people living with HIV/AIDS,” said Casey House Board Chair Gillian Stacey in her welcome. “Our new building will allow Casey House to introduce a new model of health care, to more than double our care capacity and improve the health and well-being of the thousands of men and women who will come through our new doors in the future.”

Said client Todd Kaighin, “After more than a decade of planning and consultation, I am so delighted Casey House will now have a new home. A place where explanations are not required, and where compassion and support are always given. There are more of us than ever growing old with HIV, and many of us will need the kind of care Casey House provides.”

Premier Kathleen Wynne remarked, “Our government is proud to support this project, and to build on Casey House’s history of care and compassion.... I think that all of us who have lost people we cared about to this disease are thinking about them today, so I want to acknowledge all the people who you’re all thinking about.”

“Let’s recognize as we break ground today that it’s the beginning of so many new things that we have to keep on working to ensure that there aren’t gaps in care,” said Toronto-Centre MPP Glen Murray. “We have to work to ensure that people are not marginalized, that people never have to go through what we went through in those early days, and that we never forget where we came from, so that we never ever give up the fight.”

Casey House’s new home for compassionate HIV/AIDS care is scheduled to open at the end of 2016.

Please continue to check www.caseyhouse.com for updates and renderings of the new facility plans and photos as construction progresses.

How donors make inspired HIV/AIDS care possible at Casey House today

COMMUNITY PROGRAMS

Most of the money raised by Casey House Foundation supports our community programs, which are an essential daily lifeline for hundreds of vulnerable people living with advanced HIV/AIDS in our community. This includes home nursing care, social work, case management and home making support as well as access to massage therapy and other therapeutic programs and services at 9 Huntley Street. Care is also provided at outreach clinics that bring our expertise and compassion to marginalized and underserved people living with HIV/AIDS, in partnership with other agencies

INPATIENT CARE

For people living with advanced HIV/AIDS who require sub-acute care in one of our beds at 9 Huntley Street. Donor funding complements funding from Toronto Central LHIN for additional vital services including massage therapy, recreational therapies and the Resident Care and Comfort Fund.

EDUCATION & RESEARCH

Partially funded by donors in addition to the AIDS Bureau of the Ministry of Health and Long Term Care, Casey House provides seminars and symposia for care providers and clinicians throughout Toronto as well as training and preceptorships for the next generation of HIV/AIDS care providers. We also advance research into health care delivery for people living with complex presentations of HIV/AIDS.

Your generosity finds its way into every point of service at Casey House. Together with your help, we're transforming HIV/AIDS care in our city. Thank you.

Motivational Interviewing

A behind-the-scenes look at an essential technique for supporting our clients through change.

Motivational interviewing is a client-centered, collaborative, empathic communication and counselling approach that supports the client's own discovery of behaviour changes that he or she might choose to make for improved health – such as reducing drug and alcohol use, quitting smoking, going on a diet, starting an exercise program or taking medication consistently and as prescribed.

“Motivational interviewing has proven to be a very effective way for our staff to partner with clients and work progressively towards achieving their desired health and life outcomes,” says Karen de Prinse, Chief Nursing Executive and Director of Clinical Programs at Casey House.

Motivational interviewing recognizes and accepts that everybody approaches change in their lives with different levels of readiness. Using open-ended questions and focusing on the present, the Casey House care team works with clients to identify and reflect on their behaviours that might have consequences or risks, and explore their ambivalence to change. They build strategies and identify motivations for changing a particular behaviour if it is not consistent with their personal values or goals.

Together, the Casey House team member works with the client to identify goals that are small, important to the client, specific, realistic, and oriented in the present or near future. Success in achieving these goals is acknowledged, no matter how large or small.

“Casey House is very client-centered and motivational interviewing is an important way for our team to engage clients in their health care,” says de Prinse. “We help them to build skills to make ongoing choices not only about their care but about other life circumstances too. By supporting and empowering our clients to identify their own health care goals and work progressively towards them, we can help them secure their desired care that will lead to improved health and well-being.”

Embracing positive change

“Casey House has never just done what everyone else is doing. Its unique role as a centre of excellence and innovation in HIV health care is what distinguished Casey House from the beginning. This reputation continues today, and I believe that it will continue into the future, through all the changes ahead.”

♥ Scott Mullin, Vice President of Community Relations, TD Bank. Casey House Leadership Donor and Former Board Member

“I’m grateful for the help we get from Casey House, because now I can concentrate on staying alive. Without Casey House, Peter and I couldn’t make it on our own. They make a big difference for me. Things are different now, with me in this wheelchair and having to depend on Peter for everything. It isn’t what we ever imagined in our lives. But at least with Casey House, with their help, I know I can do it. And we’re doing pretty well. So I want to say thank you.”

♥ Richard Gravett, Casey House Client

“Money cannot buy the care and love that we receive from everyone at Casey House. As soon as you walk into Casey House, you see that the caring goes way beyond what you’d expect from a normal hospital. If donors want to know where their money goes, and what they’re supporting, they should know how special it is. Yes, when you give, you get a tax deduction, but you should also be proud that when you give to Casey House, you’re helping this very special type of care. I know this because it’s the reality for Richard and me every day.”

♥ Peter Crawford, Richard’s Partner

“When I first started volunteering at Casey House 18 years ago, most people died in care. It was rare to see someone go home. Today, that experience has changed so much. Now, when people come to Casey House, they may be really sick and many people might expect them to die. They might expect that themselves. But you learn at Casey House that when people get the love and treatment that they need, they can recover enough to go home and live independently. I’ve seen it happen so many times. They may need ongoing support from the Casey House community team, and often, they’ll need to come back to Casey House at some point for care. But it’s different because from then on, they know that Casey House is here to help. They’re no longer alone.”

♥ Avi Mani, Volunteer, Casey House Weekend Reception Desk

“I’m glad that we have Casey House here to help in the community, because a lot of people have nobody else to turn to. Casey House is there to take them in and help them out. That’s why Grant and I give whatever money we can to help out with the operation of Casey House. I really believe that when you give you also receive, because it makes you feel good in your heart. So when Grant leaves to do another volunteer shift at Casey House, I say “Go! Go right ahead!” because I know it makes him feel good, too.”

♥ Alex Salanga, Donor  WATCH THE VIDEO

“So many clients have experienced the sort of adversity that can affect your social skills and your ability to cope with daily life. And when you’re sick and depressed – nobody’s at their best. I see clients struggle with this. But at Casey House, people are shown acceptance and treated with care and compassion, no matter what their circumstances. I know that this approach has a positive effect because I see that trust build. Clients start to feel better about themselves, and this leads to treating their bodies and their health better. So their recovery is enhanced by that positive attitude, by being accepted and not judged.”

♥ Dr. Grant Maxted, Donor and Volunteer  WATCH THE VIDEO

“Without Casey House, I would not be here today, feeling strong and being a good mother to my child. Saying thank you is not enough, but it’s all that I can do. All that I have to give back to Casey House is my thanks, and my story. I want people to know that they saved my life, and they gave my son back his mother. I want other women to know that they should not feel shame because they have HIV. And to keep hoping. Even when it seems there is no hope left, a change can happen.”

♥ Joy, Casey House Client READ MORE OF JOY'S STORY

At Casey House, you quickly learn not to take a situation for granted. It’s important to keep an open mind and be present to the needs of our clients. Often a client who seems to be in a really terrible health situation will show amazing strength and resiliency. No matter how experienced we are in our practice, every nurse here at Casey House has his or her own story about someone who surprised us with his or her ability to persevere and rebound from terrible health and life conditions. For me, it’s a reminder that no matter how much we think we know as professionals, it’s always important to slow down and listen to our clients, to bring the arts of honesty and creativity into our practice. That’s what really helps to move people forward on their paths in this life.

Third Party Fundraising Events

Organized and funded by community groups, clubs, businesses or individuals, a third party event is a wonderful way to raise funds for compassionate HIV/AIDS care at Casey House. For information about how your event can support our special care, please contact us at 416-962-4040 ext. 232.

Monogram Dinner by Design

Redefining the traditional fundraising cocktail/dinner party, Dinner by Design was a multi-event fundraiser held in January 2015 that brought together eleven internationally celebrated designers and local talent to create three-dimensional dining installations that awed, inspired and delighted attendees. The event raised over $185,000. The net proceeds were divided evenly between Casey House and Design Exchange. Special thanks to Philippe Meyersohn for spearheading this exciting fundraiser.

Red Rose Ball

In April, The Red Rose Ball of The St. George's Society of Toronto paid tribute to acclaimed actor and commentator Rick Mercer with its Award of Merit for his contributions to the community. In addition to supporting the many charitable works of St. George's, the evening of fun and frivolity at the Fairmont Royal York Hotel raised funds for Casey House, at Mr. Mercer's request. We are grateful to Mr. Mercer and the St. George's Society of Toronto for their generous support.

You Can Help

Nobody should have to manage this devastating disease alone.

For as long as we are needed, Casey House will be here, continually adapting to support the diverse health care needs of people living with HIV/AIDS in our community. But we can only do it with your help.

More people in Toronto are living with HIV than in 1988, when we first opened our doors. We need your support today more than ever. Together, we're opening the door to a new future of HIV/AIDS care.

PLEASE CONSIDER THE FOLLOWING THREE WAYS TO GIVE TO CASEY HOUSE:

1. Support Ongoing Programs & Services

Make a one-time or monthly donation to our ongoing programs and services.

2. Make a Generous Rebuilding Lives Capital Campaign Gift

Pledge a gift to our Capital Campaign, helping to transform the future of HIV/AIDS care in our city.

3. Estate Planning

You can help to ensure your legacy of caring and compassion continues long after you are gone. Please remember Casey House in your will and estate plans.
